

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done! How you would not willingly pay for food that is worthless--would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless health first returns." And I back my statement with a signed and sealed 30 day "No Cure, No Pay" contract.

I positively pledge to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails." Let others do the same--can you pass their prescriptions by?

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not know the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. You are going to test away that medicine in medicine. The books below will tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a tiny hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a filament of hair. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives the heart its power, its tone, its never-ending action or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who do not yet know how the Stomach and Kidneys each have their "inside" or "nerve" system. They tell how the Restorative is especially made to reach and revitalize those weaker falling inside requires. All of these facts and more I am able to say, "It is true if it fails!"

This is why I say "take no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it if just as I do by this remarkable offer."

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to issue my medicines to the sick.

Just write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Send me an order to give the 30 day test. Do drop me a line please--and thus save disappointment and delay. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Remember, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours--and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up any serious ailment. I have helped thousands of people by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely yours--your simple request requires. So write now while I am able to say, "It is true if it fails!"

Write me in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

HOISINGTON.

From The Dispatch.

A. Schwager sold Geo. Black's residence property, now occupied by J. R. Williams, to Chas. Norton, consideration $2200.

A daughter was born to Roy Humphrey and wife Tuesday and Roy's smile is broader than ever now.

O. L. Gregg and family left last week to visit in Indiana.

N. E. Tisdale has started on his annual visit to California. He likes to spend his winters with his sister who lives at Arlington Station, Riverside, California.

Luther Tindall and his sister, Lena, who have typhoid fever, are getting along nicely. We hope for them a speedy recovery. Gerold, their little brother, has recovered and is getting rugged and fat.

Roy Allen and wife, of Galatia, passed through Sunday going to their home from Great Bend, after a short visit with Mrs. Allen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Speck.

Joe Degen has returned to Kansas City to rest up. Mr. Degen says he has so many things to look after while here, and not being used to the daily grind of business, he becomes worn out and has to lay off for a while to rest up.

Mrs. Bert Kelley, of the north side, presented to her husband on the 15th, it being his 24th anniversary, a beautiful present in the shape of a sweet little baby girl, and they call her Fay. Bert has reasons to smile and feel life size.

A Sop To Insurgents.

President Taft has played his last card in an effort to stop insurgency in the Republican party, by offering the Insurgents their share of the patronage. But it is too late to stem the current that is carrying the G. O. P. on the rocks; and the concession the President has now made is more likely to hurt than to help his cause. The question of patronage has had very little to do with the split in the Republican party, and certainly has had nothing to do with the result this fall in Maine, except to help to eliminate Hale and Swasey and other friends of the administration. The Maine voters did not rout the Republicans on the question of postmasters, for they knew that--for the time at least--the Democrats whom they elected have no offices to distribute. There was much deeper cause that changed the life long Republicans to Democrats, and the President will discover it when all the elections have been held.

The enormous increase in the cost of living and the failure of the Republican Congress to revise the tariff as promised; the extravagant expenditures; the efforts of the Insurgents headed by Theodore Roosevelt to overthrow the Stalwarts who are discredited before the voters, have led to the discomfiture of the Republican party.

The President was himself to blame for taking the advice of Cannon, Aldrich, et al, and by accepting their help in trying to enact what he considered necessary legislation. If he had vetoed the tariff bill instead of praising it; and in place of recommending a railroad bill that was favorable to the railroads, had followed the suggestions of Senators Cummings, LaFollette, and others, there would have been no insurgency except such as Mr. Roosevelt was bound to raise for his personal advantage. But New-Nationalism would have died a-borning, and conservatism would have been generously accepted without the aid of Pinchot or Ballinger if President Taft had not made Pinchot a martyr.

President Taft is unfortunate in the company he has kept; the discredited Republican leaders have led him into the trouble he is now encountering; they showed him that without their help he could do nothing, for they controlled Congress. There is good reason to believe they threatened him with a split in the party unless he sided with them. He has distributed all the important offices to their henchmen, and is now making a still greater political error in offering the Insurgents the small mess of pottage that remains.

The Insurgents who have won will be laughed at and despised if they are found dangling their heels in the White House for a chance to beg for a postmaster-ship or other such small favors, in return for which they will vote to retain what they have been discrediting--the Cannon-Aldrich program.

Too late, Mr. President, too late. The wolves have entered the party fold and the Republican sheep are so scattered that they are out of range of the voice of the shepherd.

Lessons Of The Coal Strike.

By Dr. F. W. Blackmar, Professor of Sociology and Economics, University of Kansas:

The coal strike is ended. Thirty thousand men who have been out of employment, most of the time, for over five months, have returned to work. An agreement between operators and miners has been reached which is apparently satisfactory. The miners claim a great victory. The operators are satisfied and are preparing to make the public pay all the cost of the strike. The miners have gained an increase in wages of 3 cents a ton on blasted coal, and 5 cents a ton on picked coal. This amounts to an average increase of twenty-five cents per day on wages, and this is practically the price the miners have been contending for. But, this is a small victory in comparison with some of the terms of agreement. The agreement to refer all future difficulties to arbitration is of very great importance. It is a great step in advance. Also the fixing of a penalty for continuing a strike, applicable to both miner and operator, is another important step.

Notwithstanding the victories, from the standpoint of the administration of justice by self-governing people, the strike was a useless and wasteful affair. It brings us back to the old proposition that the contention and the strife between organized labor on one hand and organized capital on the other is a public matter, and it is the duty of all citizens working through government and law to assume the responsibility of every such contention and to provide ways and means to settle it. As a result of this strike, contractors have paid ten to fifteen cents a ton extra on all contracts made since April 1st. This affected at least 200,000,000 tons of coal. Cash prices since the beginning of strike have advanced an average of forty-five cents per ton over this contract price and these prices have affected at least five million tons. For six weeks prior to this strike on account of its threatening aspects, coal sold at a dollar a ton over and above contract prices. Consumers have already paid a million dollars prior to the strike, twenty million dollars in increased prices on contract coal, two million, five hundred thousand dollars on cash coal, all since the first of April.

Roughly estimated already the strike has cost consumers twenty-three million, five hundred thousand dollars. Since the strike has been settled prices have gone up twenty-five cents per ton in order to cover the loss in the increase in wages, and the losses on cessation of operation of mines. Before the year is out the cost of this strike to the consumer will be swelled to at least one hundred million dollars. This burden especially does not fall upon the operators, for they will get their money back, nor on the miners, because their consumption of coal is comparatively small, but upon the public, the innocent bystanders, the American people. And the American people, in one sense, deserve this, because they failed to exercise the opportunities given them by self-government; to put such laws in force as will prevent the occurrence of such unfortunate and expensive affairs as strikes. The loss in wages to the thirty thousand miners in five months was not less than twelve million five hundred thousand dollars.
